CALIFORNIA ELECTIONS DATA ARCHIVE

INTRODUCTION

The California Elections Data Archive (CEDA) is a joint project of the Center for California Studies and the Institute for Social Research, both of California State University, Sacramento and the office of the California Secretary of State. The purpose of CEDA is to provide researchers, citizens, public agencies and other interested parties with a single repository of local election data. With over 6,000 local jurisdictions in California, the task of monitoring local elections is nearly impossible for individuals. CEDA addresses this problem through the creation of a single, cost-effective and easily accessible source of local election data. CEDA includes both candidate and ballot measure results for county, city, community college, and school district elections throughout the State. CEDA thus represents the only comprehensive repository of local election results in California.

Election data are collected periodically throughout the year. This enables CEDA to incorporate results from special elections as well as all regularly scheduled elections. Election results from counties, cities, and community college and school districts are entered in the CEDA database from which three standard CEDA reports are generated. These reports include:

- County Elections: Candidates, ballot designations, and vote totals for all elected county offices; vote totals and text for county ballot measures.
- City Elections: Candidates, ballot designations, and vote totals for all elected city offices; vote totals and text for all city ballot measures.
- Community College and School District Elections: Candidates, ballot designations, and vote totals for all elective community college and school district offices; vote totals and text for all district ballot measures.

Ballot measures for all jurisdictions are coded according to type (e.g., charter amendment, bond measure, initiative, etc.) and to subject (e.g., taxes, education, public safety, governance, etc.).

THE CENTER FOR CALIFORNIA STUDIES

Located at California State University, Sacramento, the Center for California Studies is a public policy, public service and curricular support unit of the California State University. The Center's location in the state Capital and its ability to draw upon the resources of the entire State University system give it a unique capacity for making contributions to public policy development and the public life of California. Center programs cover four broad areas: administration of the nationally known Assembly, Senate, Executive, and Judicial Administration Fellowship Programs; university-state government liaison and applied policy research; civic education and community service through forums, conferences and issue dialogues; and curricular support activity in the interdisciplinary field of California Studies.

INSTITUTE FOR SOCIAL RESEARCH

Established in 1989, the Institute for Social Research (ISR) is an interdisciplinary center serving the research needs of federal, state and local government agencies, non-profit organizations and university administration, faculty and students. These services include research and sampling design, measurement, coding and data entry, computer assisted telephone and field interviewing, mailed surveys, focus groups, data base management, statistical analysis and report production. ISR has completed numerous contracts with over 40 state and community agencies, several private firms and many administrative units of the university. Faculty affiliates of the Institute offer expertise in a wide variety of disciplines, including the social sciences, health and human services, engineering and education.

CALIFORNIA SECRETARY OF STATE

The Secretary of State is, among other duties, California's chief elections officer with the responsibility of administering the provisions of the Elections Code. The Secretary must compile state election returns and issue certificates of election to winning candidates; compile the returns and certify the results of initiative and referendum elections; certify acts delayed by referendum and prepare and file a statement of vote. Recent legislation permits but does not mandate that the Secretary of State compile local election results.

1997 ELECTION DATA

California local governments conducted a total of 118 elections with 2841 separate races (candidates and measures) in 1997. Although March, June and November accounted for three-fourths of all elections, at least one was held in each month. Forty-four of the 58 counties held candidate elections or presented ballot measures for voter consideration during this off-year. The counties not participating were nearly all rural and northern counties. Los Angeles and San Mateo counties were most active, holding eight and seven elections respectively.

The implementation of Proposition 218, "The Right to Vote on Taxes Act," approved by the voters in November of 1996, determined the content of many city and county ballot measures. Among other things, Proposition 218 placed greater restrictions on local government's ability to impose taxes and property-related fees and assessments. It further required that any tax increase enacted by local governments after January 1, 1995 had to be submitted to voters for approval within two years of the July 1 implementation date. As a result, many local governments submitted ballot measures seeking voter approval to maintain previously existing services.

For example, to comply with Proposition 218, the city of Riverside asked voters to approve a business license tax increase that had been in effect since 1995. Cities in Alameda County presented Proposition 218 related measures and gained voter approval to maintain six existing assessments and special taxes relating to emergency fire and medical response services. However, voters in the city of Inglewood defeated four measures that would have maintained previously increased taxes.

BALLOT MEASURES

In 1997 a total of 342 county, city, school and community college district measures were placed on ballots in 45 counties. Like 1995, school district and city measures predominated, with the former accounting for 174 of all measures (51%), followed by 144 city (42%) and 24 county initiatives (7%).

The pass rate (60%) was virtually identical to that observed in 1995 (61%). Gann Limit measures were the only ones to fail more often than they passed. In contrast to 1995, even bonds and tax initiatives had positive pass/fail ratios. Perhaps reflecting Proposition 218, bonds and tax measures dominated the ballot initiatives in 1997, making up two-thirds of all measures. They constituted less than half of all initiatives in 1995 (46%). Roughly half (51%) of all ballot measures dealt with education; governance issues were a distant second (13%) and general services third (10%). While four out of the five counties with environment-related ballot measures were in southern California (Riverside, Santa Barbara, Ventura and Los Angeles), transportation measures were confined to northern California and mainly Bay Area counties (San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara and Yolo).

County Measures. Nine geographically diverse counties presented ballot measures, although over half (14) were on the ballot in San Francisco. Fifteen of the 24 county measures were successful, including 5 bond measures, 4 tax measures, 1 charter amendment and one Gann limitation measure. Topics of approved measures included funding school, college, library and zoo facilities, requiring campaign consultants to register with a city ethics commission, funding highway and stadium development projects, as well as maintaining emergency medical services. The nine failed measures ranged from the construction of an emergency communications system to an increase in the sales tax and a modification of county employee retirement benefits.

City Measures. Voters in 85 cities were presented with a total of 144 city ballot measures. Eighty-three measures (58%) were successful while 61 failed (42%). Tax measures, charter amendments and recall elections were the most common issues voted on by city voters, accounting for 87% of all city ballot measures. City voters approved half of the tax measures (35 of 70), 24 of 27 charter amendments (88%), and 15 of 28 recall attempts (54%). Cities in Los Angeles County accounted for nearly a quarter of all city measures, including 19 tax measures; only 7 of these were successful (36%). In contrast, cities in Alameda County were more than twice as successful at passing tax measures, with 10 of 12 tax measures approved (83%).

School Measures. School and community college districts fielded 174 measures, including 118 bond measures (68%), 23 tax measures (13%), 18 Gann limit initiatives (10%), 13 recalls (7%), and 2 miscellaneous measures (1%). Voters approved 108 school district measures (62%), considerably more than they approved in 1995 (51%). Bond measures, which require two-thirds of the vote for passage, were successful nearly 60% of the time, as 70 of 118 such measures were approved. An overwhelming percentage of bond measures that failed were supported by a majority of the voters (87%, or 42 of the 48 defeated measures), but fell short of the two-thirds required for passage. Districts in Los Angeles County used bond measures primarily to raise revenue for repair, renovation, and acquisition of needed facilities. In addition to bond measures, 16 of 23 of tax measures (69%) were approved. Nearly half of the Gann limitation measures were approved, and 12 out of 13 school board members were successfully recalled.

CANDIDATE ELECTIONS

In 1997, California voters elected 1,172 public officials from a total of 2,498 candidates. School board races dominated this off-year election, outnumbering city races by almost 4 to 1. Only five county seats needed to be filled, four of which were open seats. Non-incumbent candidates filled all five seats. This was clearly the exception rather than the rule. In city and school board elections, it was more difficult to succeed as a challenger than as an incumbent: three-fourths of the incumbents won, while two-thirds of the challengers lost.

City races. A total of 263 city council seats in 109 incorporated cities were filled by elections in 1997. City council races attracted 643 candidates of whom 149 were incumbents (23%) and 494 were challengers (77%). Incumbents won re-election 79% of the time and accounted for 44% of all successful city council candidates (117 of 263). However, 53 of the city council seats were open seats, and a total of 146 challengers (56%) were elected. Mayoral races totaled 24 city contests with 11 incumbents winning re-election. Other city contests included treasurer and attorney where every incumbent won re-election. Incumbent city clerks were only slightly less successful than fellow office-holders, winning re-election a mere 92% of the time.

School District Races. In 314 school and community college districts, voters were presented with a total of 1,729 candidates. Incumbents were outnumbered two to one in school board and community college district races, yet 73% of all incumbent candidates won re-election.

TRENDS

Four years of data collection allow some cautious description of short-term trends. The meaning and stability of these changes in voter behavior, however, are harder to discern. First, 1996 and 1997 saw a marked increase in the number of ballot measures submitted to the voters. More than twice as many measures appeared on 1996 ballots compared with 1994 and a third more were voted on in 1997 than voters dealt with in 1995. Ballot measures are more frequent in the even years, less frequent in the odd-numbered ones. Bonds are more apt to be included in the odd numbered years; they made up a little over a third of all measures in both 1995 and 1997, but only 10 – 11% in 1994 and 1996. Tax measures have constituted an increasing percentage of ballot measures, beginning with 10% and 14% in 1995 and 1994 and ending with 25% and 29% in 1996 and 1997.

Education-related measures are much more common in the odd-numbered years, making up roughly half of all measures in 1995 and 1997, but only 13 – 15% of all measures in 1994 and 1996. In contrast, governance issues are more common in even-numbered years – making up roughly 40% of all measures in 1994 and 1996 – and less common in the odd-numbered years (25% and 13% in 1995 and 1997 respectively).

Bond measures have become increasingly successful at the polls. In 1994, a third of these measures passed, in 1995 almost half (47%); in both 1996 and 1997, 59% of all bond measures were approved by voters. A similar, though less dramatic shift, occurred with tax measures. With pass rates in the 35% to 44% range during 1994 – 1996, over half (56%) of all tax measures were approved in 1997.

The success of bond measures may be partially explained by their tie to education. Pass rates for education-related measures have gone up from 53% in 1994/95 to 63 – 67% in 1996/97.

The tide also turned on Gann limit initiatives. Although few were introduced in 1995 and 1996 (4 and 6 respectively), almost all passed. In 1997, 29 appeared on the state's ballots and less than four in ten passed (38%).
